BODIES OF THE TWO CHILDREN FOUND

Searchers Were Rewarded Yesterday Morning by Finding Bodies of the Two Children, Who Had Been Drowned the Night Previous—Will be Buried To-day.

The bodies of the two children, Nora and Tommie Saurez, who were drowned the evening previous in Bayou Chico, were found yesterday morning, the searchers being rewarded after working all night, discovering the remains just after daylight. The body of the youngest, the little boy, was first found. It was discovered on the opposite side of the bayou from the point where the accident occurred. The body was lying on the bottom of the bayou, and was quickly carried to the opposite shore and later to the home.

About an hour afterwards the body of Nora, the little girl, who was just the senior of the boy, was found. This was discovered near the Pensacola Boat Club, about a mile south of the point where she was drowned, and was being carried toward the bay. The body was found by a colored man, who had joined in the search, and had it not been for him it is probable that the remains of the little girl would have been carried out into the bay and possibly lost.

As soon as possible Judge Landrum went to the home and viewed the remains, pronouncing death due to accidental drowning.

The undertaker then prepared the bodies of the three little children for burial, and the interment will occur this afternoon.

The bodies were laid out at the home, the remains of the oldest girl, Mabel, being placed in the center and the bodies of the younger ones on either side. During the day many persons visited the home and extended condolences to the bereaved.

CHINESE BOYCOTT IS ON IN EARNEST

CELESTIALS APPARENTLY DETERMINED TO FORCE UNITED STATES TO TERMS.

By Associated Press.
San Francisco, June 28.—Edward G. Bellows, until recently consul general for the United States in Japan, has arrived in San Francisco aboard the Pacific mail liner Manchuria.

Mr. Bellows' bridge renewed confirmation of the boycott, which the merchants of China have declared on the United States manufacturers and on American merchandise coming from this country. He adds a new phase to the condition of affairs by bringing the information that the Orientals have carried the boycott to the extent that in many instances importers are having great difficulty in obtaining assistance in the unloading of American products.

"There can be no doubt that a determined effort is on foot in China whereby it is hoped to bring pressure to bear upon the United States through the medium of a boycott," said Mr. Bellows. "The object, as has been already explained, is to force this country to grant more liberal treatment to merchants and other Chinese who travel in the United States."

"All over China the guilds, which are similar to our boards of trade, are using their utmost influence to bring about the desired effect. Many are hearkening to their teachings. In the several ports the hands who are accustomed to unload the imported goods have been taught to leave untouched the merchandise brought from our country. This condition of affairs is likely to grow."

"Of course I am not saying how effectual this mode of procedure may prove. In fact, I think that there is no great cause for alarm. Still, we must remember that in Germany and other nations we have worthy competitors in the Chinese trade, and what we lose is bound to be their gain, to a certain extent, at least."

Henry B. Miller, consul at New Chwang, succeeded Mr. Bellows.

The Silver Maple.

The highest pinnacle of tree development seems to have been reached when the silver maple was formed in nature's crucible. Think of all the good points in a physically perfect, high strung, blooded horse, apply these points to tree life and we have the silver maple. From the ground up to the topmost leaf we find expressed in every atom of the tree strength, vitality, purity, beauty and usefulness. The trunk of this tree is as sleek and clean cut as any one could imagine a tree to be. The leaf is beautiful in its shape and color, the underside, being a silvery white—from which it takes its name—and as one stands under it and looks up he sees a silver dome, or, if a breeze is blowing, the green, and silver leaves shimmer and vibrate like an aspen, giving the appearance of pale green fire, which is especially noticeable on the approach of a storm. The leaf is five pointed and the entire edge is again indented with well defined teeth. This is the common shade tree of our cities.—St. Nicholas.

A Minister's Wooing.

The Rev. John Brown of Haddington, the author of the "Self Interpreting Bible," was a man of singular bashfulness. His courtship lasted seven years. Six and a half years had passed away, and the reverend gentleman had got no further than he had been in the first six days. A step in advance must be made, and Mr. Brown summoned all his courage for the deed. "Janet," said he one day as they sat in solemn silence, "we've been acquainted now six years and mair, and I've ne'er gotten a kiss yet. D'ye think I might take one, my bonnie lass?" "Just as you like, John; only be becoming and proper w' it." "Surely, Janet; we'll ask a blessing!" The blessing was asked, the kiss was taken, and the worthy divine, overpowered with the blissful sensation, rapturously exclaimed: "Heigh, lass, but it is gude! We'll retura thanks!" Six months later the pious couple were made one flesh.

"When I was in Sydney, New South Wales," said a traveler, "I visited the botanical gardens, the largest and most magnificent park in Sydney, but I had hardly stepped inside the grounds when I saw a sign that nearly took my breath away."

"The sign was a notice to the public that no person wearing a dirty shirt would be permitted to enter the grounds. It was such a remarkable notice that I looked up one of the keepers for an explanation. And, do you know, his explanation was quite plausible."

"We don't want a laboring man to come here in his working clothes," he said. "We want him to go home and put on clean clothes and bring his family here, looking neat and clean and have a good time. That makes the surroundings more cheerful for everybody concerned."—San Francisco Chronicle.

How and Why It Rains.

Rain is an accumulation of the tiny particles of the vapor of the atmosphere into drops. These drops, first small of size, attract others of their kind and become drops of such magnitude that they fall to the earth because of their weight. There is a limit to the quantity of water which the air is capable of absorbing and retaining as invisible vapor. Warm air is able to hold more than cold air; hence when the air which is saturated with moisture becomes cold for any reason whatever it can no longer retain its moisture. A portion must under such condition accumulate into drops. These fall to the earth in the shape of rain.

GOOD GAME WAS PLAYED

LOCALS DEFEATED THE BERNHARDTS BY A SCORE OF 5 TO 4 IN A FOURTEEN-INNING GAME—ONLY A SMALL CROWD WAS PRESENT.

Probably the fastest game of baseball to be played at Palmetto Beach during the past three years, was witnessed there yesterday afternoon when the Pensacolas and Bernhards, the latter of New Orleans met, and played a fourteen-inning game, resulting in a score of 5 to 4 in favor of the locals.

The local men were determined to break even with the visitors, and they played fast ball. But few errors marred the contest, and those that were made were excusable. The form displayed by the locals Tuesday and that of yesterday was much different, and in fact with the team that was on the diamond and the game put up they could defeat any semi-professional team in the south.

Switzer, the clever little southpaw from New Orleans, was on the rubber for the locals, with Mitchell as receiver. This battery worked well, and Switzer kept the visitors safe at all times, while Mitchell prevented, by his accurate throwing the pilfering of few bases by them. The battery received good support from the team, and the fielding was brilliant and hitting and base running good and timely.

On the other hand New Orleans played a better game than on Tuesday, when the locals were defeated. Snyder and Maloney composed the battery and did excellent work. Snyder, however, also struck out to his credit, though he seemed wild at some periods of the game.

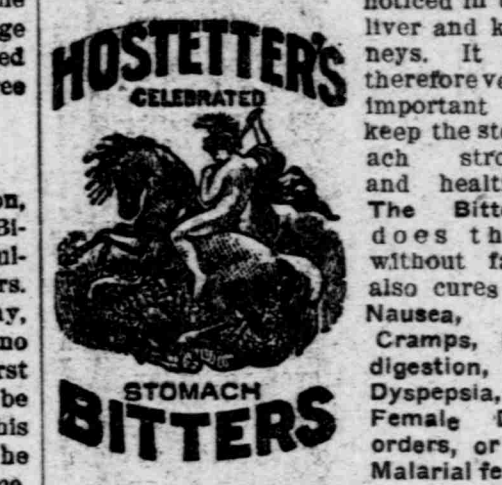

For fourteen innings the two teams battled for the winning run, but at the last half of the thirteenth Pensacola managed to send a runner across the plate, thus winning the contest.

There was much comment during the game over the actions of a number of young men in the grand stand, who persisted in using insulting language towards the players and umpire, and also regarding the fact that spectators were allowed in the press stand. Hereafter all of this is to be stopped. If the game does not suit the spectators they have the privilege of leaving the park, and if the grand stand is not good enough for them they can do likewise.

The patronage extended was anything but good, and should have been much better, inasmuch as an effort is being made to build up week-day ball. The local men lost money on the game, even though the rate from New Orleans was exceedingly low.

Sam Flynn umpired the game, and gave universal satisfaction to the two contending teams.

OVERLAND LIMITED NOW FURNISHES PASSENGERS WITH

NEWS FROM ALL THE WORLD.

In modern phrase the scriptural writings might say: "Behold I will do a new thing. I will make a railway in the wilderness and irrigation rivers in the desert. I will plant in the wilderness the cedar, the acacia and the myrtle, and oil tree; I will set in the desert the fir tree, and the pine and the box tree. Many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased." These words, some of them written nearly twenty-seven centuries ago, are verified in the present. The building of the Union Pacific through the wilderness is a new thing. In the annals of history there is nothing to equal it. The vast immigration to the trans-Missouri region has opened up the arid lands of the west to irrigation, and in every direction the landscape shows variegated beauty in thriving citrons and towns, beautiful groves and gardens where desolation once ruled.

First Railroad to Span Continent. Following the construction of the great railroad, the first to span the continent, it at once became the highway of the world, and millions were traveling to and fro, increasing knowledge and spreading the pursuits of peace, until now the dormant nations of the east are aroused, looking to the regeneration of Asia and the spread of liberal and progressive institutions over that vast continent.

Girding the Earth. Following this great enterprise, which has welded the American continent with indissoluble bands, came the trans-Siberian railroad, and now the Cape to Cairo line is penetrating the heart of Africa until the railways through the wilderness will girdle the earth with the swift winged messengers of commerce, spreading knowledge and enlightenment among the most darkened nations, vivifying them with life and energy until the whole earth will yet respond with the conquests of peace and the desert places shall be filled with the oil tree, the myrtle and the rose.

Traversing the country west of the Missouri to the Pacific, one can see every tree mentioned in the scriptural words we have written, blooming in beauty and adding the blessings to the comfort and welfare of the American people. The cities and towns that have sprung up have contributed their share to the increase of knowledge through their great universities, colleges and schools, and the church spires pointing upward reveal the virtue of the people who possess them.

An Entertaining Spirit. But this has not been enough, and now the enterprising spirit of the Union Pacific's progressive publicity department comes forward and says: "Behold I will do a new thing. I will make a newspaper in the wilderness. I will transmit to the patrons of The Overland Limited the world's latest news through the medium of daily bulletins giving the latest telegraphic service from all civilized nations, placing the passengers in touch with current events and the markets, while the trains are traveling to and fro at high speed, ascending and descending mountains, running through valleys, and rushing through canyons and through what was once the wilderness, but no longer a wilderness, and now filled with gardens and fertile farms, and all the evidences of the highest civilization."

The Overland Telegraph. The wireless telegraph relieves the tediousness of an ocean voyage and gives the latest news to those who go down to the sea in ships. The overland telegraph carries the latest news to those who are traveling over the Rocky Mountains, and the Sierra Nevadas, or where rolls the Columbia down to mingle its waters with the ocean beyond on the shores of Oregon and Washington. The Union Pacific daily news bulletins are issued twice each day (and oftener when special occasions arise), one at noon and the other at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and are delivered to the trains at convenient places. They contain the latest telegraphic news of the day typewritten.

Election Returns on Moving Train. It is a remarkable fact that for the first time in the history of railroading, election returns were furnished to trains at all stopping points on election day. Messages of about one hundred and fifty words, announcing the result of the presidential and state elections, were sent out every half hour by the publicity department of the Union Pacific. These dispatches gave the result of the election as reported by the Associated Press and other dispatches, so that passengers, whether on plains, mountains or desert, were as fully informed of the election results as those who were at home. Whether it be a conflict between Russia and Japan; a North Sea incident; a startling event; a great football game—in fact anything of unusual interest; all these are at once flashed over the wires to the flying trains and are given out in the daily news bulletins to the passengers, who read and discuss the important items with the deepest interest, all the while marveling at and praising the up-to-date-ness of the great Union Pacific trans-continental line.

The Union Pacific daily news bulletin has come to stay. It is one of the new things of the new country. The thoughtful genius who conceived this idea is entitled to the enduring thanks of the many thousands of people crossing this great continent.

cart, the mule train and the stage, vending their long and toilsome way across the western plains, insured to their travelers for weeks and months from the sight of men. No news came to them, and to the world and its doings, they were lost. Then came the Pony Express, with its swift riders, carrying the news ten days old from station to station, followed by the overland telegraph with its messenger bulletins, often many hours old. Next were the fast passenger trains, and the small papers of the towns and cities they created by the way, with the tidings of hours to the waiting passengers. Then came the daily telegraphic news bulletins—a splendid and original achievement of the Union Pacific, whose name for enterprise leads all the rest.—The Examiner, Omaha.

DEATH OF A LITTLE BOY

SON OF MR. AND MRS. W. A. GAHLENBECK EXPIRED YESTERDAY OF TYPHOID FEVER.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Gahlenbeck have the sympathy of the entire community in the loss of their little son, August Edward Gahlenbeck, who expired at their home yesterday morning. He had reached the age of 11 years, and had been ill for several weeks, suffering with typhoid fever and a complication of other diseases.

Death occurred at 9 o'clock when he was surrounded by his parents and a number of intimate friends of the family, many of whom had watched over him during the long illness and assisted the parents in the care of the sick one.

The little fellow, through the entire period of his sickness, bore the pain without a murmur of complaint, and even up to the time of his death no whimper was heard to pass his lips.

The funeral services will occur this afternoon, the cortege leaving the family residence at the corner of Jackson and Davis streets at 2:30 o'clock and proceeding to St. Michael's church, where the services will be conducted. The interment will occur in St. John's cemetery.

FOREST FIRES IN ALASKA CUT OFF COMMUNICATION

By Associated Press.

Seattle, Wash., June 28.—Forest fires along the banks of the Yukon river below the mouth of the Tanana river and Eagle City have cut off all communication with Nome and St. Michaels, and for the past four days the local cable office has been unable to establish any communication with those points on Behring sea.

Fire is also raging on Prince of Wales Island, and many of the residents have fled to southeastern Alaska.
